This website makes archival material associated with Jaguar and its predecessor companies available online for researchers and the wider public. Jaguar Daimler Heritage Trust endeavours to check copyright status before making material available online, and where practical contact rights holders to seek permission. We are not always able to identify and trace rights holders for our archival materials. In some cases, we may make this content available online.

If you believe that material on this website:

- infringes your copyright or related rights, or
- includes your personal data in a way that is unlawful,

you may submit a Notice and Takedown request.

How to Submit a Notice and Takedown Request

Please provide the following information:

1. Your Contact Details
  - Full name
  - Postal address
  - Email address
  - Telephone number (optional)
2. Details of the Material Concerned
  - The web address (URL) where the material appears
  - A clear description of the material you are concerned about
3. Grounds for the Complaint
  - For copyright: proof or a statement that you are the rights holder (or are authorised to act on their behalf) and that use of the material is not authorised.
  - For personal data: a statement explaining how the material identifies you (or another individual you represent) and why its inclusion is unlawful or inappropriate. Our privacy policy can be found here

What Happens Next

- We will acknowledge receipt of your request within 5 working days.
- The material will be temporarily removed from the website while we investigate your claim.
- We may contact you for further information.
- If the claim is upheld for valid reasons of copyright, the material will be removed until copyright has expired, or a license has been agreed with the rights holder.
- If the claim is upheld for valid reasons of data protection the material will be removed until it is no longer considered sensitive.
- If the claim is not upheld, we will reinstate the material and explain our reasoning.
